Bloomsbury Hotel

Benefit: Warmer and Safer

Type: Restoration

arrangement allows ready access to the whole of the window, particularly important for cleaning.

Described as ‘one of the most spacious and well designed hotels Bloomsbury has to offer’ the newly restored Radisson Edwardian ‘Kenilworth Hotel’, previously known as The Marlborough, has underwent a £25 million transformation and now boasts 174 spacious rooms and suites with Selectaglaze secondary glazing a key element of the makeover.

As every hotelier knows, peace and quiet play a major role in attracting guests. So for the Kenilworth, situated in the bustling heart of the capital, the need for top rated sound insulation was absolutely critical and any treatment had to have the approval of the hotel’s acoustician.

The preferred solution is a pair of linked hinged casements each covering one of the window sashes and glazed with toughened glass for the safety of guests.

The units, incorporating high compression seals, will reduce noise levels by more than 40dB and the opening

Secondary Glazing

The design is both subtle and practical, fitting in well with the beautifully refurbished rooms.

Other major benefits include the elimination of drafts and much reduced heat loss through the window, providing a more comfortable room and lower operating costs.

Founded in 1966 and a Royal Warrant holder since 2004, Selectaglaze has worked extensively with many of the UK's best known individual hotels and groups.

Secondary glazing can either be fitted during room upgrades or to a fully occupied hotel. The windows are fully fabricated off-site and close liaison with 'front-of-house' and housekeeping will allow installation to be completed with minimum disruption during room handover periods.
